Two Germanys Reopen Talks

BONN, Oct. 24 (AP) .- East and West Germany today resumed talks aimed at achieving within the next few weeks a treaty to normalize relations between them. Chancellor Willy Brandt's top East-West affairs specialist, State Secretary Egon Bahr, met his East German counterpart, Michael Kohl, in the Chancellery for another three-day round of negotiation on a proposed basic treaty of accommodation.

Their session began a day after Soviet, U.S., British and French ambassadors opened in West Ber-lin a series of talks aimed at settling the basis on which the two Germanys will enter the

U.S. Study for '70s Predicts More China-Soviet Hostility

By Dusko Doder

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (WP). fluent north and increasingly im-The State Department has forecast continued Chinese-Soviet hostility throughout the 1970s in a study that also predicts improved U.S. relations with the two main Communist powers and a growing stability in world af-

The study, prepared by the department's planning and coordination staff; predicted, "By 1980, China and the Soviet Union are quite likely to consider one another, rather than the United States, their principal antagonist, if indeed they do not do so al-

It said that Peking and Moscow base their actions "on pragmatic assessment of their national interests and capabilities" and that this "should lead to gradual im-provement in their relations with the United States."

The 140-page document, titled. The U.S. Role in an Evolving World," represents a major effort by the department to outling global issues in the post-Vietnam war period. The study was distributed among ranking officials last week for comment and is not regarded as recommendations to

The Good Old Days Its conclusions reflect growing concern about complexities in world affairs and changes in power alignment following "the relatively simple bipolar days of the cold war." Forecasting continued "sharp" Soviet-U.S. competition in world affairs and the need for a strong military posture, the study also predicts:

Soviet-U.S. nuclear parity will "diminish the political significance" of weapons and lead to a decline in the dominance of the two powers.

This decline will coincide with the growing importance of Japan and Western Chins. Enrope.

• Traditional alignments will become more flexible and subject to change on specific issues. This could result, for example, in the Soviet Union and the United States taking a joint position toward trade policies of the Com-mon Market, while the Soviet Union and Western Europe may jointly oppose certain U.S. in-vestment policies.

The study also predicts that the "third world" of developing, basically nonaligned countries is likely to become a "primary focus of conflict and possible confrontation in the years ahead."

It is in America's interests, the study says, to seek ways to avoid "confrontation between an sf-

Asked after his arrival from East Berlin today if the four-power talks indicate the negotiations here are in the final phase, Mr. Kohl told newsmen: "Let's talk about it in three days' time." Even before the Big Four am-basisdors met, there were reports that the two Germanys' talks had progressed well. The reports were backed up by a statement by East German leader Erich Honecker, that normalization was "within grasping distance" and by Mr. Bahr's statement that the talks could be completed before the Brandt government seeks re-

Kissinger Reports to Nixon, Saigon Sees Cease-Fire Soon, Rogers on Talks in Saigon

By Marilyn Berger

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (WP).—The White House today cautioned against "excessive speculation" about the status of the Vietnam peace talks following a spate of reports that an early cease-fire was in the offing.

Presidential press secretary Ron Ziegler's remarks had the effect of cooling the air of expectancy surrounding the intensified negotiations.

Mr. Ziegler saw reporters following an hourlong meeting of President Nixon, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Presiden-tial Adviser Henry A. Kissinger who returned late yesterday from five days of conferences with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The press secretary repeated what had been said by the U.S. Embassy in Saigon, that there had been "some progress" in the talks, but he left the clear implication that there was still a way to go before there would be any resolution of the conflict, military or political.

If there were any remaining doubts about this, Mr. Thieu's speech in Saigun hours after Mr. Kissinger's departure, showed that South Vietnam continues to take

Bid for Support

Mr. Thieu's speech was read here as more than a mere statement of position, but as a combined bid for domestic support and as a means of forestalling U.S. pressure. By rejecting a whole gamut of compromise, he appears to be trying to make it harder for Mr. Kissinger to ask him to accept them later. If it does nothing else, the speech tends to delay any resolution of the problem.

At the same time, Mr. Thieu appeared to be making a bid for further compromises by Hanol In the same way, North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong, in his recent interview with Newsweek's correspondent Arnaud de Borchgrave, was seen as attempting to put pressure on Mr. Thieu and on the United States.

By declaring readiness for a oners of war, the North Vietnamese sought to demonstrate that Mr. Thieu is the obstacle to the settlement. The impasse between the two sides puts the next move up to Mr. Nixon, Mr. Ziegler said today that the President has no plans at this time to make a speech on Vietnam. He said that Mr. Kissinger might see the press but ruled out any meeting More Meetings

Presumably, if there is still hope for moving the talks for-ward, Mr. Kissinger would meet again with North Vietnamese officials in Paris, where he has been holding secret talks. But there are no signs so far that Hanoi's chief negotiator, Le Duc Tho, is on his way back to Paris The indications have been that Mr. Kissinger reached some kind of tentative agreements with Mr.

Raids in North Cut During Peace Talks

SAIGON, Oct. 24 (AP).—President Nixon has quietly re-stricted the bombing of North Vietnam, mainly around the two major cities of Hanoi and Haiphong, during critical peace talks, it was learned today.

The gesture comes at the time of the year when the northeast monsoons over the North would have cut into American air strikes anyhow. This is the time of the year when the bulk of the U.S. bombing automatically shifts to the Ho Chi Minh Trail supply network in Laos, where the dry season has begun.

The U.S. command refused to confirm or deny the report of the restrictions, but the Seventh Fleet disclosed without elaborating that three of its four carriers had moved from the Tonkin Gulf off the coast of North Vietnam southward into the South China Sea off the coast of South Vietnam.

Other sources outside the command confirmed the report but declined to go into details of the restriction or say whether it was part of some kind of a tacit agreement between the United States and North Vietnam.

Strikes by U.S. tactical fighter-bombers against North Victnam have been averaging less than 300 a day in the last few days. The U.S. command reported about 120 strikes yesterday. The U.S. command spokesman noted that the northeast monsoons have begun and added that 'weather is a possible factor" in the drop in the air strikes from the usual daily average of 300 or more. More important is that U.S. bombers have avoided the Hanol-Haiphong industrial complex.

In a related development, the U.S. command also reported that there were no raids by B-52 heavy hombers in North Vietnam during the 24-hour period ending at moon today. There were two days earlier this month, Oct. 5-6, when there were no

B-62 raids over the North. While sources confirmed the restrictions placed on tactical fighter-bombers in the Hanoi-Haiphong region, they said they would not read too much significance into the absence of B-52 strikes over the North. The raids generally have been concentrated in the southern part of the country. The eight-engine Stratofortresses, however, carried out more than 100 strikes in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, sources said. About a third of the raids were concentrated in the Saigon area, where fresh fighting crupted 21 miles north of the capital. Highway 13 was closed 21 miles north of Saigon, and South Victnamese forces backed by bombers were trying to root North Vietnamese troops from three hamlets in the area.

tell them [the Communists] faithfully. In an apparent reference to recent press reports saying that the United States is trying to convince him to endorse a settlement already agreed upon by Washington and Hanoi, Mr. Thieu said: "Our main ally will never betray us and cannot betray us. Those who are circulating false news are lackeys of Communists, colonialists and false pacifists."

He insisted that only such "lackeys" called him an obstacle to peace. 'I am not an obstacle to peace," the president said.

"Peace has been our wish for 16 years and a cease-fire must certainly come first when a peace solution is reached. The question is whether, when a cease-fire and peace come, will our people have freedom and independence and the right to determine their fate or will it be determined by the Communists?" Mr. Thieu asked. Militarity Weak

The president claimed that the Communists only want a cease fire because they are weak militarily and are seeking to get an agreement before the American presidential elections. "Now, the Communists insist the United States agree to a cease-fire because their forces have been destroyed and they are defeated on every front and because they hope that candidate Nixon will be easier to deal with than a re-elected President Nixon," Mr. Thieu said. "We do not fear nor try to avoid a cease-fire if it is in line with our position," he said. Claiming that the Communist offensive launched March 29 has been a failure and that U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and the mining of its harbors has badly hurt the Communists, Mr. Thieu added: "Sooner or later, the Communists will have to beg for a cease-fire." Whether it comes before the U.S. elections or in two or three months, he said, the South Vietnamese position will be the same. That position, as Mr. Thieu outlined it tonight, calls for respect for the 1954 Geneva agreement which divided Vietnam into North and South. ### U.S. Oilman Gives Russia Trade Offer

MOSCOW, Oct. 24 (AP).-Armand Hammer, the American oil magnate who yesterday gave Russia e million-dollar Goya portrait, today submitted proposals to the Soviet government for a deal he says could be worth bil-

Occidental Petroleum told a newsmen that he made the forms proposals on a fertilizers-forammonia deal to Deputy Foreign Trade Minister Ivan F. Semichast-nov and Dahermen M. Gvishiani, deputy chairman of the State Committee for Science and Technology.

When Mr. Hammer was here last month, he said that Mr. Gvishiani's father-in-law, Premier Alexei N. Koaygin, had ap-proved all the plans "we are working on."

The plans included Mr. Hammer's offer to supply the Russians with $150 million worth of superphosphoric chemical fertilizers annually over a 20-year period. The Soviet Union would pay for the fertilizers with ammonia and ures, a derivative of natural gas. It was understood that Mr. Hammer's proposels today had to do with establishing agreed prices for the commodities involved in the deal.

Very Encouraged

Mr. Hammer described his discussions as "very satisfactory, warm and friendly." He said he was "very encouraged."

Nevertheless, when asked if he would sign a deal with the Rus-sians before leaving on Friday, he said: "I wish I knew."

Also on his agenda here are two other projects that he said earned Mr. Kosygin'a approval last month—Mr. Hammer's development of a permanent international trade center in Moscow with space for 400 firms, and a joint venture to exploit Soviet natural gas.

Mr. Hammer said his new American partner in the naturalgas proposal-Harold Boyd of El Paso Gas-would arrive tomorrow to take part in the discussions. He said he and Mr. Boyd probably would see officials at the Ministry of Gas on Thursday.

The Soviet press and television gave wide coverage to Mr. Hammer's presentation to the Hermitage Museum in Leningrad of Goya's "Portrait of Dona Antonia Zarate."

Refugees' Return Barred

MUNICH, Oct. 24 (UPI).-Several refugees from East Ger-many who tried to return there to visit relatives under the terms of recent agreements have been refused entry at the Berlin wall, the Bavarian Interior Ministry said today

A ministry spokesman said the former. East German citizens passed unchallenged along the access highway to West Berlin, but at the main Berlin wall cross ing point were refused an entry grounds that their presence in East Germany was "undestred." The ministry spokesman said "several" were turned back. He did not give a precise number. The East German government announced on Oct. 16 that it was depriving persons who fled to West Germany before Jan. 1, 1972, of their East German citizenship. It said this meant that these former citizens no longer would be liable to prosecution for offenses against East German law, including the offense of illegal flight to West Germany. Ordinary West German citizens long have been allowed to visit East Berlin and under recent agreements are allowed to visit other places in East Germany. But East German refugees living in West Germany were unable to return because they would risk prosecution. In West Berlin, police and Interior Department officials refused to comment on the Munich

The South Vietnamese president called the Communist peace proposals "dark schemes eimed at taking over South Victnam."

In effect, those provisions would give the Communists nothing that they did not have in 1954 except the right to "participate" in elections run by the Saigon government.

Mr. Thieu declared that if a cease-fire should occur, "we will always respect it, but the Communists will not. We respect peace, a cease-fire."

He called on South Vietnamese political and religious groups to cooperate with the Saigon government in case a cease-fire is effected. He warned that the Communists already were making plans to take over in many areas under the guise of a truce. Saying his information came from cantured documents and interrogation of prisoners and dc-fectors, Mr. Thien remarked: "Before the cease-fire order to their cadres, they are trying to cause uprisings and incite the tinued, "I will not give in to the people and refugees to go back to areas occupied by the Com-

U.S. Lawyers Say Hanoi Regards Peace as Distant

PARIS, Oc. 24 (AP) .- Three American lawyers, who talked Saturday with North Vietnames Premier Pham Van Dong in Hanol, said today that they felt chances for peace in the immediate future were "very dim

On the basis of atatements made to them by North Viet-namese officials and Viet Cong representatives in the North Viet namese capital, the lawyers said, they were "highly skeptical about reports of an approaching settlement representing a genuine movement toward peace."

The lawyers were Joseph Crown of Mamaroneck, N.Y., president the Lawyers' Committee on American Policy Toward Viet-nam; Malcolm Monroe of New York, the committee's vice-president, and Lawrence Velvel of Washington, D.C.

In a statement, the lawyers said that a high representative of the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam told us flatly Monday that there is no peace agreement. More-over, nothing we saw or heard in North Vietnam led us to conclude that a settlement has been reached or is imminent."

Van Con's Role

PARIS, Oct. 24 (IHT) .- Nguyen Van Con is a member of the Committee for Peace and Renovation in South Vietnam and not a member of the exiled-National Reconciliation Movement as reported in a dispatch by The New York Times published in yesterday's editions of the InThieu's strong public stand in recent days has been aimed at checking uncertainty among the populace and especially within the South Vietnamese military. Any sign of weakening on Mr. Thieu's part, observers have said, could prove dangerous to military morale. The president reminded the South Vietnamese: "The war still goes on. We must fight the Communists militarily and politically." Mr. Thieu took note of the North Vietnamese and Viet Copp personal opposition to him,

"The Communists have claimed am an impediment to peace," he said. This is not true, because I have already said that I, as an individual, will be ready to step down when a guaranteed peaca has been restored."

This was a reference to his promise to step down a month ahead of new elections after a settlement has beeen reached. "But as a president," he con-

U.S. Cautious About Truce

kinds of things discussed. Diplomats abroad who have closely followed South Vietnam's negotiating tactics suggest that Mr. Thieu is trying to pin down precisely the kind of powers a transitional government would have a process which could be atrung out for some time.

On the military side, by de-manding full North Vietnamese withdrawal, Mr. Thieu points up one of the Communists' main fears, U.S. specialists said. The Communists, these sources said, have long made clear their great concern about the future of their cadres in the South once their military forces leave. They said that the Communists thus insist on protection against what they call the "apparatus of op-pression" represented by the Thieu government and on a coalition that would guarantee them a fair chance in a future election. Despite Hanoi's concerns, Pentagon analysts say that a standstill cease-fire would help the North Vietnamese and hurt the South Vietnamese forces. A standstill cease-fire, however, would leave all forces in place, which appears to be precisely why Mr. Thieu is rejecting it and demanding instead that all North Vietnamese forces leave the South.

JOHANNESBURG, Oct. 24 (Reuters). — Magistrate's court here today acquitted 38 students and a photographer of charges filed under South Africa's Riotous Assemblies Act.

The charges arose out of a demonstration at the University of the Witwatersrand here in June to protest apartheid in education.

Regional Magistrate J. L. Villiere said in his judgment that the accused could not be found guilty because the police officer in charge had not warned demonstrators three times that action would be taken if they did not disperse within three minutes.

The demonstration was one of series of incidents involving students and police in which a total of 608 persons were arrest-ed. There are still some cases pending before the courts, but some of those against whom charges were not pressed are seeking legal advice on claiming damages against the police.

brackish water may be the answer. It is estimated that there is 1.1 billion acre-feet of such water beneath the Imperial Valley of southern California. An acrefoot is the amount of water required to cover one acre to 2 depth of one foot.

This resource is referred to as a geothermal sea. It is simply large underground deposit of saline water trapped in loose sediments, heated to high temperatures by the earth's core. Major geothermal deposits have been located in the United States, Iceland, New Zealand, Italy, Japan, the Soviet Union and

It is hoped that this resource can be tapped. Geothermal fluids are regarded as being relatively easy to convert into fresh water by distillation processes, since they emerge from the ground extremehot. This heat should be sufficient to power the conversion. The recovered fresh water could then be pumped into the Colorado River to augment its flow. In addition, electricity could be generated by such a source of

The Office of Saline Water, an arm of the Bureau of Recla-mation of the Department of the Interior, in mid-August finished drilling a test hole to a depth of 8,030 feet on the east mesa of the Imperial Valley, about seven miles southeast of Holtville, Calif.

The temperature at the bottom of the hole is 392 degrees Fahrenheit; the water is brackish and not quite as salty as sea water. The steamy water emerges from the ground at 245 degrees Fahrenheit, a spokesman for the project said recently, which is hot enough to produce electricity and to desalt water.

When the water has been thoroughly tested, by early next year, project officials plan to install a small, experimental desalting plant at the site. If all goes well, project scientists expect to be ready to build several de-salting plants within the next 10 years. The plants would produce about 100,000 acre-feet of desalted water each year and 420 million watts of electricity.

All Charges Dismissed in Lavelle Case

U.S. Secretary Bars Illegal Raids Trial

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP) -The Air Force today dismissed court-martial charges against Maj. Gen. John D. Lavelle who was relieved of command, demoted and retired after ordering illegal bombing strikes against North Vietnam In a brief statement, the Air Force said that Secretary Robert Seamans jr. ordered the charges dismissed "after thorough investigation and review of all facts and material in connection with the matter." The statement said that Gen.

Lavelle'a release from command of the 7th Air Force in Indochina was sufficient punishment and, therefore, "the Air Force plans no further action in this

The charges that Gen. Lavelle had 'willfully disobeyed lawful orders and falsified official documents" were made in a complaint submittled to Mr. Seamans by 1st Lt. Delbert R. Terrill jr., 24, an Air Force Academy graduate.

No Further Action

Lt. Terrill filed those charges in June after the Air Force had said that it planned no further disciplinary action against the general for the 28 unanthorized bombing raids carried out between November, 1971, and March of this year. Gen. Lavelle had told congressional hearings that be falsely reported a strike as "protective reaction" in response to enemy fire against U.S. reconnaissance planes

Under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, any serviceman can prefer charges against an-other. Lt. Terrill drew up a formal charge sheet and presented it to Mr. Seamans.

Lt. Terrill, in a statement, called the dismissal "a slap in the face to every soldier who has ever worn the American uniform."

"No court of inquiry has been convened to determine if Gen. Lavelle's actions merit a court-martial," he said. "No action has been taken with respect to those below Gen. Levelle who knowingly carried out the illegal orders and/or falsified reports."

In dismissing the charges, the Air Force declared that Gen. Lavelle's release from command in April "has served the interests of discipline by its punitive impact and by placing commanders on notice that the Air Force does not and will not condone the manner in which Gen. Lavelle discharged his duties."

After Gen, Lavelle was ordered home from his Vietnam assign-ment, he was offered reassignment at the rank of major general, two grades lower than the rank of full general in which he served as commander of the 7th Air Force.

Decides to Betire

However, Gen. Lavelle elected to retire, with a $27,000 annual pension based on his four-star rank. that amount, all but about $2,500 is tax free because of a 70 percent disability granted him by the Air Force.

But even with his decision to retire, the Air Force had recommended that he be placed on the retired list in the grade of lieutenant general, a one-step demo-

The Senate earlier this month rejected this and retired him as major general, Mr. Seamans said that the nomination to lieutenant general is being withdrawn.

PARIS-Another monument was officially added yesterday to the long list of those scattered about the streets, squares and parks of Paris as memorials of Frenchmen famous or the reverse. WASHINGTON, D.C.—Increasing prosperity, the return to work of the millions of coal, steel and rail strikers and a better realization of the accomplishments of the Harding administration are factors, Republican leaders say, working for the benefit of the Republican party in its first national campaign since the overwhelming majority which swept Harding into office in 1920. They expect some losses in the House but expect to retain majority in the East.

And of course there is the central question, Paris that creates so much rumor and speculation—and even more the real complexities so far as the United States is concerned, of Hanoi and Saigon, and the relationship of President Thieu to any eettlement, temporary or semi-permanent. Movement toward such a settlement can be discerned on both sides of the DMZ, but the fighting continues and so does the clash of idea and rumor.

These complexities might have been foreseen when the United States first gave its support to Diem, and first sent troops into Sonth Vietnam. But there were other perplexities then, which made even the relatively simple-from today's viewpointchoice of entering the Vietnamese conflict or abstaining from it difficult, and which led to (again, looking backward from 1972) the wrong course. Today, the intricacies of the matter have multiplied. It may take, as the old saw has it, two to make a gnarrel. Bot in Indochina it takes many more than that to bring the quarrel to an end.

Recently renewed skirmishes between the conservative Republic of Yemen and Marxist South Yemen have been small-scale and little noticed outside the area. The struggle is for high stakes, however, involving ultimate control over the oil-rich Arabian peninsula.

Backed by both the Soviet Union and China, an increasingly radical regime in South Yemen (Aden) openly aims at the overthrow of conservative governments in neighboring Persian Gulf states, including Saudi Arabia, which controls a substantial

Peace between the two Yemens would reduce the persistent danger of a larger war on the Arabian peninsula, possibly involving the major powers. But enduring peace is difficult to foresee in an area where traditional tribal rivalries, intensified by modern change, generate chronic conflict-especially as long as the militant Marxists of Aden receive support from Moscow and Peking for subversion among their neighbors.

More than half of those people have died in the past seven months alone, since last March. That was the point when, in a well justified concession to the Catholic population, Britain suspended the Protestant - dominated provincial parliament. Unhappily. Britain's struggle to hold a middle course has not reconciled the Catholic gunmen, while the Protestants have become increasingly hostile and aggressive. Protestant rioters in Belfast recently burned a Catholic church, along with various other depredations in the same spirit, in response to the continuous bombings and snipings of the Catholics' Irish Republican Army. Protestant irregulars are now threatening to carry the battle across the border into the Republic of Ireland, where IRA men have customarily sought sanctuary. The next political event in Northern Ireland was to have been the local elections on Dec. 6. The British have organized them on a basis of proportional representation, to end the tradition under which the Protestants used their two-thirds majority to foreclose any effective voice to the Catholics. The Prot-ciation of the British Army, hints at the Rhodesian tactic of a unilateral declaration of independence. Things are not, in short, getting any more pleasant.

The prospect for civic peace depends on the general population's eventual revulsion against indiscriminate murder. Last spring a peace movement among the Catholics gave rise to the hope for a time, but it faded. Political loyalties tend to run deep beyond all reason on those small islands that have suffered heavy emigration over many years. There are other examples: Sicily with its infestation of Mafiosi, Cyprus with its Greek and Turkish populations at each other's throats. The people who remain when so many leave must be those who feel extraordinarily deeply about custom and community. When violence begins in this atmosphere, it is very difficult to stop.

Perhaps the current outburst of Protestant rioting will suggest to the Catholic politicians the rising risks of their intransigent refusals to bargain. It is a thin hope, for the gunmen are at the present very much in charge and the peacemakers walk in fear of their lives. But that thin hope is all that the current state of affairs can offer.

International Opinion

Vietnam Talks' Equation

Judgment on a negotiated settlement in Vietnam would depend on whose interests it would ultimately serve. Hanoi needs time. but the North Vietnamese leaders will not give up their life-long aim to win the whole of Vietnam for their brand of national Communism. The people of South Vietnam want peace, not Communism. America wants to shed its Indochinese burden, but must avoid a dishonorable end to that commitment. Moscow and Peking are having their own kind of trouble with a stubborn Hanoi. It would be interesting to know whether in the equations of negotiation further American withdrawals can be balanced by reductions in Soviet and Chinese arms aid to North Vietnam.

As a rookie, Mr. Robinson had been warned by Mr. Rickey of tha insults that would occur. He also was urged by Mr. Rickey to hold his temper and he complied. But the following season, as an established player, he began to argue with umpires and duel verbally with opponents in the normal give-and-take of baseball. ...

As the years passed, Mr. Robinsoo developed a close relationship with many teammates.

As a competitor, Mr. Robinson was the Dodgers' leader. In his 10 seasons, they won six National League pennants—1947, 1949, 1952, 1953, 1955 and 1956. They lost another in the 1951 playoff with the New York Giants and another to the Philadelphia Phillies on the last day of the 1950 season.

Rookie of the Year In 1949, when he batted 343 to win the league title and drove in 124 runs, he was voted the league's most valuable player award. In 1947, he was voted the rookle of the year.

He had a career batting average of 311. Primarily a line-drive hitter, he accumulated only 137 home runs, with a high of 19 inboth 1951 and 1952. But on a team with such sluggers as Duke Snider, Gil Hodges and Roy Campanella, he was the clean-up hitter, fourth in the order, a tribute to his ability to produce with

His personality flared hest as a runner. He had a total of 197 stolen bases and stole home II times, the most by any player in the post-World War II era.

"I think the most symbolic part of Jackie Robinson, ballplayer," he once reflected, "was making the pitcher believe he was going to the next base. I think he enjoyed that the most too. I think my value to the Dodgers was disruption, making the pitcher concentrate on me instead of on my teammate who was at bat at the Pigeon-toed and muscular, wearing number 42, he ran aggressively, typical of his college training as a star football runner and passer at the University of California, Los Angeles, in 1939 and 1940. He ranked second in the Pacific Coast Conference in total offense in 1940.

Born in Georgia

Born in Cairo, Ga., on Jan. 31. 1919, he soon moved to Pasadena, Calif, with his mother and her other children after his father deserted them. He developed into an all-round athlete, competing in basketball and track in addition to baseball and football. After attending UCLA, he entered the Army.

With his college degree, be was second lieutenant. After his discharge, he joined the Kansas City Monarchs of the Negro National League as a shortstop.

"But if Mr. Rickey hadn't signed me, I wouldn't have played another year in the black league. It was too difficult. The travel was brutal, Financially, there was no reward. It took everything you made to live off."

After his retirement from baseball in 1957, he joined Chock Full ONuts, the lunch-counter chain, as an executive. He later had a succession of executive posts with an insurance firm and was chairman of the board of the Freedom National Bank in Harlem and a member of the State Athletic Commission.

PARIS THEATER: 'La Claque,' Season's First Comedy Hit

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss PARIS, Oct. 24 (IET).—The physical mistreatment of critics by the criticized is almost unknown in the English-speaking world. But, in pre-war France, it was not uncommon for a deprecated anthor to challenge an offending critic to a duelthis colorful custom was abolished by an enlarged sense of the ridiculous and a law against dueling.

This creator vs. critic conflict is the subject of André Roussin's new comedy, "La Claque" (at the Théâtre de la Michodière) he toys with it amusingly, extracting some diverting interludes.

A composer slaps a music critic (who has been lambasting him for a long time in print; in the lobby of a theater, with le Tout-Paris as audience. The stunned critic consults his relatives and editors on procedure. His elder brother, a soldierly country squire, ex-pects him to dispatch seconds immediately. But cooler advice prevails and the reply to the insult is an ironic consideration of the composer's music and manners in the next day's paper.

The matter, however, is com-pounded by the fact that the critic's son is in love with the composer's daughter and, more Important, that the critic has in his employ a fiery Corsican valet, a hot-headed youngster, who rejoices in the name of Napoleon. This domestic firebrand, smarting for the family pride, seeks out the composer at another fashionable soirée and returns the slap dealt his master. His bold action deposits him in a police station and there is a second, more resounding, scandal, for it is suspected that the cringing critic a lackey.

A thematic scheme as good as this can to a degree let craftsmanship go hang. Roussin, usually an expert technician, fails to concern himself very much with the stage traffic. The trial in the police station, which might have been an occasion for fast and funny sport, has been left out and we learn of it only by report. In restricting the action to a double set, an excessive use is made of the telephone. Most of the courtship of the young couple takes place over the wires; their virulent telephonitis

New York Entertainment: 'Yerma' and 'Pippin'

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (IHT),-This is how the New York Times critics rate the new Broadway and Off-Broadway produc-

"Yerma," the play by Federico

Garcia Lorca, performed in Spanish by the Nuria Espert Company of Spain, won high praise from Clive Barnes. "Victor Garcia is a director of genius, something I suspected last year from his staging in London for Britain's National Theatre of Arrabal's play 'The Architect and the Emperor of Assyria.' Now, with this 'Yerma,' Mr. Garcia's extraordinary theatrical talent is made evident. What he has seen in 'Yerma' is that Lorca is writ-ing a Greek tragedy, complete even with chorus. Lorca was a dark poet trading in symbols, and it is this that Mr. Garcia, helped by his actress Nuria Espert, has so vividly displayed." The play acted on a trampoline, and throughout the production Mr. Garcia concentrates on the con-trast between life and death—the life of Yerma and the death wish of her husband, Juan," Barnes wrote. "Always we see Yerma braced against the trampoline of her life headed toward her ineluctable tragedy. It is a wonderfully assertive theatrical image that enityens and enriches the play." The acting was "in some respects of less significance than the stsging," Barnes reports, but ".he intensity and gravity of Miss Espert as Yerma offered a per-formance to be treasured and caressed in memory. She, too, takes an ancient Greek approach to the play, and her suffering is given a monumental inevitability." The Nuria Expert Company is playing a brief season at the Brooklyn Academy of Music,

"Pippin," a "flawed but amiable" musical, opened at the Imperial Theater last night with John Rubinstein, son of the pinnist Artur Rubinstein, in the that it has three things to commend it: "It is one of the best musical stagings to be seen on Broadway in years; it is most beautifully designed; and it might well do for the actor, Ben Vereen, what 'Cabaret' did for Joel Grey.' Set in the year 780, before Pepin's (or Pippin's) father became the Holy Roman Emperor, the book was written by Roger O. Hirson with music and lyrics by Stephen ("Godspell") Schwartz. "A trite and uninteresting story," Barnes says, with "somewhat characterless" music, it is "nevertheless consistently tuneful and contains a few rock ballads that could prove memorable." He cites the staging by Bob Fosse as "fantastic"-he never loses his silk and velvet grasp on the show"the scenery by Tony Walton as "an almost impossible combination of Holy Roman Empire and Pifth Avenue chic;" the costumes by Patricis Zipprodt ("her clowns

The Birds," a new production of the Aristophanes play, presented by the Theater at the Actors Studio, is based on a modern translation by William Arrow-smith, but it "takes liberties with Mr. Arrowsmith as well as with Aristophanes," Mel Gussow reports. This is a "flip, self-consciously contemporary Birds, full of slang and Yiddish phrases (Mr. Arrowsmith's 'skedaddle, sint,' becomes 'skedaddle, shikse')." The style of performance "might work better with nightchib comedy," Guesow says, as the two leads. Euclpides and Pisthetairos, the Athenians who found Cloud-

"Although this 17th - century Jacobean tragedy is resolutely melodramatical, it is oddly relevant." Gussow reports. "The subjects discussed, the style of the discussion—the language is elegant yet ripe with sexual double meanings even the jarring claracter changes are not alien in the contest of modern absurdist theater. One could imagine a darker, ominous interpretation instead of Michael Kahn's version in which malice and even murder are taken lightly, but in this production t'e play is both accessible and entertaining." ### Work on 'Ekofisk City' Seen on Schedule

STAVANCIER, Norway (AP).-A $1-billion steel monster— the so-called Ekofisk City—is slowly being pieced together in the middle of the storm-tossed

North Sea. In one of the toughest chal-lenges in oil history, some 500 duction plant, spread over a three-men are working around the mile area, also will include a clock to get the permanent production plant for the giant Eko-fisk oil field ready for operation

The field is some 200 miles southwest of here where the British, Danish and Norwegian continental shelves meet. When completed, Ekofisk City will produce an estimated 300,000 barrels of oil daily from a total of 39

The Phillips group—comprising U.S. Belgian, French, Italian and Norwegian companies—is now producing 40,000 barrels daily on a test basis from four wells, Natural Pasards

The hazards includa week-long storms, strong sea currents, big tidal differences and long periods of rain and fog. The whole operation is adjusted to these hazards and the work is progressing according to schedule and should be completed next fall.

Other off-shore "cities" of this kind will follow-the French-Norwegian Petronord group has found a gusher in the Frigg field further north and British Petroleum hit the jackpot in the Forties field on the U.K. side. Ekofisk City will rest safely 60 of the combined group.

New P&O Bid In for Bovis

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP-DJ) .--The boards of Peninsular & Oriental Steam Navigation Co. (P&O) and Bovis Ltd. said today they have agreed on terms of a new offer by P&O for Bovis.

The offer replaces the one made Ang. 10 that had been bitterly opposed by some P&O directors and shareholders on grounds that the terms were too generous to Bovis, a construction and property development company. . .

P&O said that terms of the new offer would result in present P&O deferred shareholders having 63.5 percent of the equity capital platforms connected to enormous under the original terms, P&O steel stilts. The sea in this area holders would have finished with only 58 percent. He said this difference is the "operative thing" about the new offer.

He was not able to assign comparative money values to the two offers, but a spokesman for Lagard Brothers Ltd., merchant bank adviser to P&O, estimated the value of the new bid at $125 million to will be towed out to Ekofisk next spring. The tank, 270 feet high, is the first of its kind. Ekofisk has so far produced some 12 million barrels of crude oil. It is temporarily being piped to two combined loading and mooring buoys a mile away, where it is pumped aboard tarkers. Eventually, the oil will be pumped directly into the permanent pipeline from the field terminal platform. A separate pipeline for the natural gas surcing together with the oil also is planned. Phillips has indicated work on the gas pipeline could start in 1974. In the current production phase, it is not possible to ntilize the gas which now is being burned atop the tower-18 million cubic meters on an average day, valued at roughly $1 million a week. Phillips wants to pipe the oil to Teesside in Britain. Opinion here is that the Norwegian parliament will agree when the question of the terminal comes up next February. A governmentappointed committee earlier this year argued for Teesside, where Phillips operates a refinery.

Government Statement

OSLO, Oct. 24 (Renters) .- Oil from the Norwegian continental shelf should be landed in Norway, the government said today in a statement of principle to parliament. However, concrete projects for landing oil in Norway would be assessed individuallv. it said.

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP-DJ),-Britain's entry into the European Economic Community risks bringing restrictions on London's activity as a banking center. Ellmore C. Patterson, chairman of Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., said

He said there is reason to be concerned that "pressures will be put on the United Kingdom move toward more restrictive continental ways of regulating and controlling financial institu-

He cautioned that such a development could endanger some of London's main attractions as a place for international banking. like favorable tax regulations, absence of arbitrary bank liquidity requirements and freedom permitted to foreign currency banking.

Prices Rise After Thieu Dampener

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (IHT).— New York Stock Exchange prices closed firm today, overcoming a moderate early loss following In Higher Volume South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu's demand for supervision and guarantees before accepting an Indochina cease-fire. Brokers said the recovery was assisted by news of U.S. curtailment of bombing of

The Dow Jones industrial average closed at 952.51 up 1.20. It was down about 7 shortly after Mr. Thieu's address. Trading was moderate, with volume totaling 15.24 million shares, compared with 14.19 million yesterday.

North Vietnam.

The market began to firm about the time of news that American jets have been flying half their usual strikes over North Vietnam during recent peace talks. The Navy acknowledged that three of four aircraft carriers stationed off North Victnam had steamed

Brokers said the market was also helped by a continuing flow

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

New Muffler Cuts Lead Emission

Initial tests on a simple unit-a lead trapwhich replaces the conventional noise muffler on vehicles indicates dramatic reductions in the lead content of exhaust gases, a spokesman for Tube Investments Ltd. reports. The unit could offer a practical alternative to severe reduction in the lead content of gasoline. The spokes man says independent tests of prototype units showed reductions of up to 70 percent in lead emissions, with no significant effect on vehicle performance. The tests suggested an effective life equal to that of present-day mufflers. The lead trap is based on principles patented by

Esso Becomes Exxon Nov. I

Shareholders of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, at a special meeting, have approved a change in the company's name to Exxon Corp., effective Nov. 1. Chairman J.K. Jamieson declined to comment on press reports that the name and trade mark change to Exxon would cost about

BBC Develops TV Data System

The British Broadcasting Corp. has developed a push-button information system for use with existing television sets. It says the system could be in production two or three years after its first trials next summer. The system would store information which viewers could retrieve by pressing a button on a box attached to the TV set.

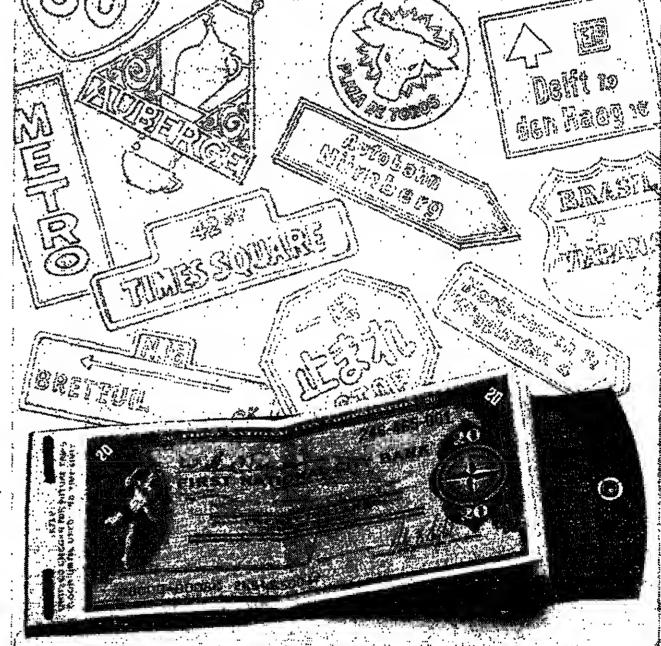

Viewers would be able to choose from 30 pages which could be displayed on the screen and which would resemble a teleprinted message. It could cover such matters as weather forecasts, news summaries, sports results and stock market prices. The system, named Ceefax, would store the information and all pages could be continuously up-dated every minute, the BBC says.

Chrysler Aims at Higher Profit

Chrysler chairman Lynn Townsend says that the record sales and sharply increased earnings reported on Monday are only an indication of things to come. "Heartening as these results may be, we still have not moved profits back to tha level we are aiming for and intend to reach." he told security analysts in Boston. He expects 1973 car and truck sales to "equal or exceed the record volumes of 1973."

Bayer Raises Stock Capital

Bayer has raised its stock capital by 45 million deutsche marks (about $14 million) to 1.91 billion DM "In connection with acquisitions," But it did not identify the acquisitions for which its stock was used. It is assumed, however, that the move is connected with the purchase of about one-third of the stock of Metzeler of Munich, a transaction carried out earlier this month. Metzeler is a major German rubber and plastics maker. The stock increase was made from 110 million DM of authorized capital available to the company. Shareholders had authorized use of the stock at management's discretion.

By Alan Truscott.

Six no-trumps is a very poor contract on the diagramed deal, and North was to blame for reaching it. When his partner opened with a strong two-bld in hearts he should have supported the suit, either immediately or on the second round. South was entitled to assume that his partner held fewer than three hearts, and therefore went to six notrump after the invitational raise of three no-trump to four.

West can hardly be blamed for failing to cealize that the only lead to defeat the contract was the clob king. At least he avoided a diamond lead, which would have given South an easy task. and led the spade ten, which would have been good enough to defeat most declarers.

South won with the queen in his hand and led two top hearts to test the situation in that suit. When a normal break was revealed he cashed the spade are and led to the king. A diamond was led. East correctly ducked, and the king won. Three more heart winners produced this curious NORTH

The lead of the spade jack forced West to give up a dia-mond, and the club ten was thrown from dummy. East gave up the diamond seven, and South played a diamond to establish the 12th trick. If East had discarded a club South could have succeeded by leading either the diamond queen or a club at the 12th trick. Oddly enough, the position of the club honors and the jack-ten diamonds does not matter. After a neutral lead the contract can always be made if the dia-

South judges the play accurately.

RETURN TO YESTERDAY By Ford Madox Ford. Liveright. 417 pp. $10.

impossible, person, I never be-lieved it. Until I cead "Return to Yesterday" I used to think that the man who could write "The Good Soldier" and "Parade's End" must have at icas. 100 redeeming qualities. In any case, out of gratitude for these two books, I would glady have forgiven him all the peculiarities ascribed to in and more. But now that Typ read these reminiscences of his, which nave been out of print and hard to find for more than 30 years, I can't imagine why he wasn't loved by everyone he met. The kinds of things Ford notices and writes about and cares about in this volume make him, seem just the opposite of whit so many people said. For a literary genius whose takent was well above the average reader's head, he comes across as almost amazingly human. Just to see him forgive Henry James— who always patronized him—is to trust and like him. At one time they lived two miles apart in the Ergish countryside, and although it seems unlikely that either cared for the other, they were intimate for a long time. Ford apparently accepted the intimacy because he believed that James was o great writer, James because he valued Ford's advice in any number of practical matters as if this other great man were his b2""ff.

James, says Ford, detested what he called bohemianism and singled out Swinburne as the age's worst ricender. He was so determined to see Swinburne as decadent and sichly that he steadfastly refused to believe that the poet could, for example, swim—while Ford as-sures us that Swinburne was famous for his swimming prowess, and was a remarkable ice skater besides. There's another delightful scene in which Ford, John Galtworthy and James are walk-ing along the Ryc Road to Win-chelsea. James's dachshund, Maximilian, liked to run sheep, so his master, in order to allow him to exercise in this war, bad provided the dog with a leash at least 10 yards long. At one point in his discourse,

"ir order to round off an immake sentence, the great men halted." While he pursued his tocught, Maximilian pursued his own enthusiasm until he had wourd the leash so intricately about their legs that they could nct move, Typically, James blamed this comic Laocoon on psur Ford. In another place, Ford gives a brilliant explanation of James's later style, "Having found that his limpidities, from 'Da'sy Miller' to 'The Reol Thing'... suggested less than he derived." James gave them up. After that, says Ford, "I fancy that he reconstruction his travely. that his mannerisms, his involution were due to a subtle con-viction that, neither in his public nor in his acquaintance, would be ever find anyone who would not need talking down to ... so he telked down to us explaining the ramifications of his mind .. as if . ir wece talking to children."

Ford was even more intimate with Joseph Conrad, with whom he cellaborated on three books.

I've always read that Ford Madox Why two of the greatest writers. Ford was a difficult, if not of this century should have felt a need for collaboration remains. 1. mystery. How this collaboration could have resulted in largely forgotten books is a still greater injectry. About his part in the collaboration Ford is most mod-tat, though Conrad gave him more credit, Actually, Ford my his more important task as the bucying up of Contad's spirits. He

The author of "Return to Yes-terday" was so far from regarding terday was so far from regarding himself as a literary giant that he wanted to be a farmer. In Peris, he studied "kitchen garden, ing" of the Sorbonne under the ing" of the sorpounc unner ingerest Prof. Gressent, and we find him girling for hours at the Cafe. des Deux Alagots planning—nog "The Good Seldler"—but the freal kitchen garden, in which every bed radiated from a dungwell in the center and could be reached by a hor.

Stephen Crane was another friend, playin, cowboy and dying of tuberculosis in the English countryside. We find Emile Zols sitting on a bench in Hyde Park exiled during the Dreyius case. On seeing Ford approach, he said: "What was one to think of a country where nursemakis dressed the hair identify that he had found as many as 13 hadrons on one morning in front of one park bench?

Ford has a wonderful ear for dialect and uses it lovingly to acceribe the peasants be knew-or hilariously to perody the speak. ing ond writing styles of his age. Out of pure personal necessity, he suel Courad were revolutioning the English nevel form, which the Engush never particle of the considered a particle of the convertions. What the literary establishment buted above all was the mot juste but the collaborators needed it because mirir ambition was "above all to make you see "

While he wrote more novels than any o' his accuaiotances ned even became fautous for some of them, Ford concidered, at the true he wrote these reminis-ences, that he had written only one. That was "The Good-Soldier," be un on his 40th birth, day. "Parade's End," written years later in the 19:0s, is another pride in it in these memoirs.

pride in it in these memoirs.
For several years, Ford was a depressed that he went to its specialists and received treatments varying from a diet of one grape every quarter hour for 16' hours to boiling shampoos and freezing foot baths. But while be willingly suffered every sort of absurdity in his desperation, he never despaired in print, "Return to Yesterday" is as rich in charity, I a nonity, wit and acumen as any memoir I've ever read. If Ford had a fault that put people oil it could only have been that ht. was too honest, too faithfut to himself, for most people's taste Without that quality, he could never have written his two great novels-or this warm and moving memoir.

• Baseball people doubt the Bay Area can support two teams. The A's drew only 918,158 customers this summer, the Giants 647,819. One persistent rumor suggests the A's might move to New Orleans along with Finley's Oakland hockey team and Memphis basketball team. New Orleans has just built expensive facilities and now neede an impresario. Finley denies he is that impresario.

• The Glonts, finding less gold all the time in California, may try for young new leadership and even ownership. They are owned by Horace Stoneham, whose father bought the team in 1918 when John McGraw was menager. It would not surprise people in the Bay Area if Stoneham sold out to Feeney, his nephew, who ran it before becoming president of the league three years ago. But for Oakland, the problems could walt. By winning, the A's gave the American League its 41st needed uplift in recent prestige.

3 Fascinating Matches Top European Cup Soccer Slate

By Brian Glanville

LONDON, Oct. 24 (IHT).—After a welter of World Cup soccer activity, the European competitions have descended upon us again, with first-leg matches of the second round of the European Cup, Cupwinners' Cup and UEFA Cup. The three moet fascinating matches in the European Cup are Derby County of England ve. Benfica of Portugal, Celtic of Glasgow vs. Ujpest of Hungary, and Russia's Dynamo Kiev against Poland's Gornik.

Derby may win by an odd goal margin at the Baseball Ground, but it is tough, on present form, to expect the English champions to prevail after playing in Lisbon. Its defense hasn't been good to the terminal, a mile away, and enough, not least because English international central stoppers Roy McFarland and Colin Todd have developed what at times amounts to a narcissistically studied approach to the game, in which the desire to look good prevails over the need for caution. Many a goal has thus been given away in recent weeks, and such players as the two Portuguese internationals, Eusebio and Jordao, are unlikely to overlook such self-indulgence.

On the other hand, Derby seems to have the capacity to rise to the occasion in European football. and I think that its key Scottish international inside-forward, Archie Genmill (omitted from the Scotland team which won splendidly in Copenhagen last week) will have a less rough passage than against the Yugoslavs of ruthless Zeljeznicar. One of the ironies of the match is that Jimmy Hagan, the English maneger of Benfica, was on Derby County's books as a young insideforward.

A Re-Run

Celtic against Ujpest is a rerun of last year's quarterfinal, which came sufficiently late in the season for Celtic to be in form. Even so, Ujpest gave it a good run for its money, and actually forced a draw in the return leg in Glasgow. This year, Celtic has again made a very poor start, and it would be frustrating to see the team disappear so early from the competition. Despite the presence of such Ujpest stars as Dunai, the powerful Hungarian international centerforward who scored the other Sunday against Austria in Vienna, it seems that Celtic has the greater potential.

In Copenhagen, little Lou Macari, its center-forward, was in glorious form for Scotland, scoring with a near-post header from R corner, and assisting on another goal for Joe Harper with a gorgeously executed backheel flick. Kenny Dalglish, his fellow Celtic etriker, came on late in the game as a substitute, and it appears that these two could be a great force this season in European football, Earlier this year, in the semifinal round against Inter of Milan and its packed defense, it was a bit too much for them.

Dynamo Kiev and Gornik will have a rare old battle. Polish football is on the upgrade after its impressive victory in the Munich Olympic tournament, and now a fine 3-0 home victory over Czechoslovakia, which now must be worried about its chief World Cup opposition, Scotland. Poles beat the Czechs without their talismanic striker, Dubanski, but Deyna, a center-forward who was the leading scorer in Munich, got two goals and still is in dead-tagonist; but Gornik has dropped to eighth place in the Polish league. Dynamo Kiev also has fallen-to ninth in the Russian league, so this is not the summit encounter it might have been a year ago. Gornik seems the better of the two.

No Summit Encounter Lubanski is Gornik's great pro-

In Italy, the football world is still buzzing over Milan's extra-ordinary 9-3 victory at home against Atalanta. Nothing like it has been recorded in the history of the championship, least of all in the recent, barren years. The incredible result was expleined by the fact that Atalanta, a couple of goals down, rashly decided to come out and make a fight of it, whereupon Gianni Rivera and Pierino Prati (three goals) chopped them to pieces. Alas, the dour, implicit moral of it will not be lost on other, less powerful Italian clubs. Come out of your defense and you play at your own peril.

> He had me in a tight corner, but I was not going to lose a chance like this without a fight. That's perfectly true of my Wife," I said. "She is amazing at keeping track of the clothes, but this woman, sir, happens to be my mother.

Your mother! Scientific data obtained from a computerized sample indicate that your mother is a woman of 75," he said, "whereas this lady . . . forgive me. madam, this lady can scarce-Iv be a day over 30."

"Ah!" I cried. "but you forget that most polls have a margin of error of 8 percent!" That calmed him somewhat, al-though he was still uneasy.

"You realize." he said, "that the answers you will give will speak for every man in America who is 53 years old, holds a college degree in Latin, is married to a womso who is very good at keeping track of his clothes, cannot swim the Australian crawl, has never had a satisfactory automobile repair job and owns a Ouija board."

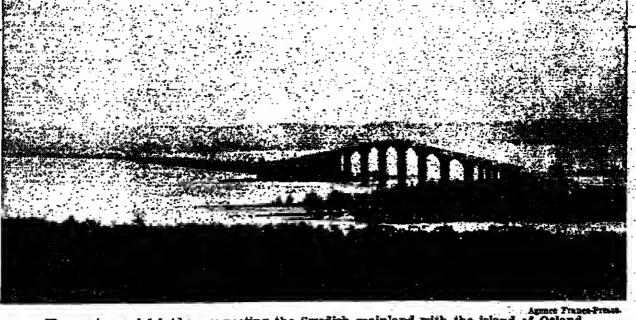

"But he's got the wrong man," I whispered to mother. 'I'm not 53. I don't have a degree in Latin, you can't keep track of the clothes and I swim a very respectable Australian crawl," "Fake it," she hissed back. "It

The controversial bridge connecting the Swedish mainland with the island of Ocland.

Questions at Either End of a Bridge

By Jan Sjöby -

NAERGESTADEN, Sweden (IHT). "Blow up the bridge," stalwart nature lovers demand. "Our island will sink."
"Thank God for the hridge," friends of industrial and economic progress counter. "Oeland was sinking."

The controversial bridge connects the Swedish mainland with the island of Ociand, a long (85 miles) and narrow (10 miles at the widest) stretch of land in the southwest Baltic. Ceremoniously opened this fall, the hridge measuring 6,070 meters—close to four miles—is the longest in Europe. At its highest level it rises some 132 feet above the surface of the Ocland is the smallest of Sweden's traditional 24 provinces and its second largest island. It is a remarkable stretch of land—called remarkable by none less than Linnagus—from any number of points of view: Geological, zoological, botanical and climatological. It is a very sensitive blome of a number of rare, sensitive species, animal and vegetable.

The island has had economic problems for a long time. There are few opportunitties for industrial development. In the 19th century a considerable portion of islanders emigrated to the New World, and when the fad wore off in the 1930s the youngsters continued to trickle off, but to the Swedish mainland Left now are some 20,000 permanent inhabitants, getting along modestly on limestone quarrying, coment manufacture, agriculture and canning. And tourism.

Folding Money

Almost half-a-million tourists visited Oeland last summer, bringing badly needed folding money into local cash registers.

"Badly needed" isn't an overstatement. The annual income per capits is the lowest in the kingdom and the housing standard is considered substandard in this land of ultra-modern, glassand-concrete apartment houses. In a few hectic summer months, the islanders try to make up for meager earnings during the bleak off-season.

No one objected to tourists in the days when their excursions into the Celand landscape were made by foot, horseback, bicycle or public transportation. There were car ferries in those days too, but few Swedes owned a car.

The automobile craze budded in the fifties, bloomed in the sixties. Sweden today is car crazy.

Crazy is the word. Sad tracks have begun to appear on the frail, steppe-like plains of Celand, where inconsiderate motorists have driven indiscriminately cross-country. Automobile tires are crushing the dainty plants of the windy plain, grinding away the thin layer of sod that covers the bedrock.

"They are wearing down the island," commented one Ocland resident. "They are loving us to death. We wouldn't mind if they showed some degree of consideration, but they don't." Next year, with the bridge solidly in place, a million visitors are expected, mainland Swedes and foreigners. Piguring, generously four pessengers to a car-mother, father and two children—that will make at least 250,000 cars. Can Oeland take a battering like that? Now many new tire tracks will be added how many more hot dog stands will mar the scene? Opinions are divided in the business community as well:

Cost of Shipping

"We needed the bridge," said a cannery man. Shipping by sea, he said, canners paid close to $5 a ton to bring their products ashore. Now they will pay some 20 cents a ton. The bridge makes no difference to us," said a concrete plant representative. "Ninety-five percent of our turnout will be shipped on keels, as before."

A mainlander commented that the four miles of bridge had drawn some 135 million crowns out of the public colfers. For that kind of money, he observed, the road authorities could have constructed more than 80 miles of first-class high-
